

OBITUARY.

REV. JOHN N. M'JILTON.

Rev. John N. McJilton, aged seventy, died yesterday at his residence, No. 132 East Sixteenth street. He was born in Baltimore, Md., in the year 1805. His father was a Methodist preacher, and reared his family in that faith. At the age of nineteen the deceased, having formed an affection for the tenets of the Protestant Episcopal Church, received a course of instruction, and a year later was ordained in St. Peter's P. E. Church, in his native city. He shortly afterward was appointed to the priesthood of St. Paul's Church, Baltimore, by Bishop Whittingham, in which position he remained nine years. He subsequently filled the position of assistant minister in Christ Church in the same city. He was also Rector of St. James' Church for seventeen years. While fulfilling his other duties he was for twenty-seven years Chaplain to the Maryland State Hospital for the Insane. He assisted at the ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the Washington Monument, and, during the war, was Secretary of the Maryland branch of the Protestant Episcopal Church Committee. At different times during his life, he was editor of several semi religious newspapers, and, a few years since, edited the Baltimore Patriot. His sketches, under the nom de plume of "Giles McQuiggin," are well remembered by Baltimoreans. During his life he took a deep interest in all educational interests, belonging to several scientific and literary societies for the advancement of young men, and was conspicuous as a founder of the Maryland Institute. About six years since he came to this City in response to an invitation of the late John Hecker, and assumed the position of Rector of the Madison Street Protestant Episcopal Mission Chapel, which position he only held for a short time, a constitutional disease having undermined his health, and he found it necessary to abandon his vocation. The immediate cause of his death was dysentery, hastened by organic disease of the kidneys. His funeral will take place from his residence to-morrow at 2:30 P. M., after which his remains will be taken to Baltimore or interment.

MR. JOHN DAVIS.

The Toronto, Ontario, papers announce the death in that city, on Saturday last, of Mr. John Davis, late a member of the Holman dramatic company playing in that city. He died of heart disease and dropsy. Mr. Davis was a native of Bath, England, and came to the United States in 1857. Soon after his arrival he joined the company of the late W. H. Crisp, his brother-in-law. Subsequently he became manager of a Southern circuit, amassing a large fortune, which was afterward lost in the war. He then became stage manager for Ben. De Bar, in New-Orleans, and went with that gentleman's company to Montreal, and became an immense favorite with the theatre-goers of the Dominion metropolis. At the end of De Bar's Montreal season of 1864 Mr. Davis joined the Holman troupe, with which he continued to the time of his death. Mr. Davis was a well-educated, genial gentleman, a fine actor, and a firm friend, and was strictly true and conscientious in all his business engagements.
